This nonprofit organization board training material represents an overview of the principles and models in use among professionals in the nonprofit sector. It contains best practices and guidelines for effective management of nonprofit boards and organizations. The compilation of these materials would not have been possible without the support of a dedicated group of colleagues.

This notebook and workshop is the result of a special collaboration among practitioners and academics. I am grateful for the support given me by the Department of Agricultural and Applied Economics, Clemson University Extension, the South Carolina Association of Nonprofit Organizations and the Southern Rural Development Center in the preparation, editing and printing of this notebook.

I especially thank Erin P. Hardwick, executive director of SCANPO, for her contributions and insights; the Southern Rural Development Center, Emily Elliott Shaw for conference management and Debbie Rossell and Michelle Yankee for technical editing and notebook design; Lynn Fowler, administrative assistant, and James A “Jae” Espey, Extension associate in the Department of Agricultural and Applied Economics at Clemson; and Gae Broadwater, Extension community development specialist at Kentucky State University for material identification, preparation and general support.
